Have a Safe Summer

“Summertime and the livin’ is easy.” It should be and it could be, but for some parents and siblings it is all but easy. Kids, left to their own devices can wander off from home and get into trouble. The news all too often tells of children that play in the waters of lakes and rivers, or backyard pools and are drowned. It is a tragedy that is all too often reported summer after summer.

Parents can’t always be with their children 24/7, but it would be advisable to educate them as to the dangers involved with water that looks seemingly innocent, yet dangerous. What seems to be shallow water can have a significant drop off or even contain whirlpools to take them under. All too often, there is no help until it is too late.

This isn’t to put the blame on anyone because accidents happen in spite of all precautions that parents take.

Above all else, pray for your children everyday to be protected by their heavenly Father and to have angels surrounding them. Prayer can make all the difference between life and death.
